Q: jQuery Select form input I am trying to write a function that will read the values from a form input and put them into variables that I can then use to make a JSON. This is my html: With jQuery I want to fill these variables with the value from these inputs: $(' "#title").val("Search"); $(' "#bar_label").val("Not found"); $(' "#server").val("not found"); I could probably just make my own function, but I would like to know if there's a plugin that already provides this functionality. A: You can use $(' #yourForm').serializeArray() to generate an object containing all of the inputs. Then you can just loop through that object and grab the values using $(' #yourForm').each(function()... and so
