Key improvements to the app's tools include a new Fill and Eraser tool that replicates the tools in the other Photoshop apps, such as the Marquee and Lasso tools, the bounding box and node tools, and Paths. The new Fill and Eraser tools enable users to remove selected areas of any size, within or outside a specific selection, in one action. The new Delete and Fill tool allows users to remove and replace objects in images with a single action, while also preserving the original content of the image. Users can select and delete a single object up to 10,000 pixels wide and 2,000 pixels tall or up to 10,000 combinations of objects up to 10,000 pixels wide and 2,000 pixels tall. Another recent update to the Photoshop desktop app adds new features, including real-time selection activity monitoring (views and support for real-time monitoring of Photoshop selection tools), the ability to switch back and forth between working in a browser and a desktop version (Design and Open dialog boxes), and support for searching through images as they are being edited. Real-Time Selection Activity Monitoring (Beta) detects any changes made to a selection, and displays the status of those changes in a log. Users can monitor the selection tools for activity, as in an editing process. This allows the user to detect and react to changes made to a selection in real time. Adobe Graphics Suite and the flagship Photoshop desktop app offer improvements in almost every area of editing. Designers can now preview, edit and annotate TypeScript templates within a sketch app. They can edit vector-based fonts more confidently with text editors and enhance their projects with the new Fill and Eraser tools.
